Police recover TV, car

Police recovered a television set and a car stolen from the June Gosnell home, 210 Kinder St., between 10 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. Sunday.

Police said someone broke into the Gosnell trailer, and stole the television set. The thieves then apparently put the television set into the woman's car and drove away.

The television set was discovered by a fisherman about 12:30 p.m. Sunday in one to two feet of water in St. John's Drainage Ditch near the VFW Ball Park.

The car was recovered by the Highway Patrol about 6 p.m. Sunday near Ferrell's Trailer Court, east of Sikeston.

Police also reported the theft of two citizen band radios from G & C Auto Sales, 91 N. Stoddard over the weekend.

Police said officers discovered a door standing open about 4:30 a.m. Sunday. The thieves apparently broke in by throwing a rock through the glass.

The loss was placed at $359.90.

Fourteen cases of beer valued at $75 were stolen from a truck parked at the Bess Supply Co. South Main St., between 6:30 p.m. Friday and 7 a.m. Saturday.

A man in his early 20s grabbed a purse from Connie Miller, 138, Sixth St., at 8:50 p.m. Saturday in the parking lot of Kingsway Plaza Mall.

Police said the man grabbed the purse as Mrs. Miller was getting out of her car. The purse contained $25.

House tackles money bills

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Compromise efforts begin on a measure to boost jobless benefits for Missourians and a multimillion dollar emergency approrpriations bill as the General Assembly returns to work today.

While two 10-member conference committees work to iron out differences in the unemployment compensation and budget bills, the House will resume work on a controversial public employe collective bargaining bill and the Senate turns its attention to revision of the state's criminal code.

Widely differing House and Senate proposals on the jobless benefit boost were sent to the joint conference panel last week after both chamber's refused to accept the other's version of the measure.

The Senate Bill would raise the maximum payment to $85 a week and bring in about 25,000 more persons to the jobless program while the House proposal boosts the ceiling to $90 but would allow only about 11,000 new workers into the plant.

The House bill also provides for increased employer contributions to pay for the higher benefits while the Senate version has no such provision.

Both measures, however, include a provision to boost all benefit payments up to the maximum by 25 per cent, a section opposed by Gov. Christopher S. Bond, who has supported increased unemployment benefits.

The two versions of the emergency appropriations bill differ by about $1 million with the Senate proposal higher at about $36 million.

Major differences in those measures center on funds for two proposed medium security prisons in the state's two metropolitan areas, money to establish an optometry school at the University of Missouri-St. Louis and about $250,000 to fund Bond's maternal health care program.

1 killed, 4 injured

A Leopold youth was killed and four other men injured in five one-car traffic accidents which occurred over the weekend in Southeast Missouri according to the highway patrol.

Deaths for this year now stand at 20, compared to 16 this time in 1974 on area highways.

The fatal accident was on Route N, eight miles north of Delta in Cape Girardeau County at 12:50 a.m. Sunday.

Arnold Jerome Stoverink, 18, was dead at the scene after he ran his northbound car off the road on a sharp curve and struck the end of a bridge. The body was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau and later transferred to Baker Funeral Home in Lutesville.

He was born Oct. 19, 1956 at Lutesville to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Stoverink. He was a senior at Leopold High School.

Surviving besides his parents are six brothers, Eugene Stoverink of Cape Girardeau, Anthony Stoverink of Chaffee, Steve, Alan, Edgar, and Terrance Stoverink of the home; five sisters, Mrs. Geraldine Bohnsack and Mrs. Kathleen Chapman of Whitewater, Dorothy, Suzanne and Patsy Stoverink of the home.

The parish rosary will be recited at 7:30 tonight and the Knights of Columbus rosary at 8 p.m. at the Baker Funeral Home.

Funeral services will be at 9 a.m. Tuesday in St. John's Catholic Church in Leopold with the Rev. A. A. Eckhoff officiating and burial will follow in the church cemetery.

In another one-car accident at 3 a.m. today on a county road two miles north of Cape Girardeau, Floyd Arthur Rednour, 30, of Cape Girardeau, received minor injuries when his westbound car failed to negotiated a turn, struck a concrete abutment and ran off into a creek.

Rednour was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Three accidents which occurred Saturday included one at 2:30 a.m. on Highway 21, eight miles east of Lesterville in Iron County.

Steven Walter Pounds, 18, of Glover, was the driver of an eastbound car in which a passenger, James Thomas Pounds, 22, of Glover, received injuries. He was treated and released from St. Mary's Hospital in Ironton.

The accident occurred when the right front wheel dropped off the pavement and Pounds lost control of the car, which struck a concrete culvert and then ran into a gravel embankment.

At 3:15 a.m. on Highway 25 two and a half miles west of Cardwell, Charles Lee White, 36, of Paragould, Ark., lost control of his southbound car which skidded off the west shoulder of the road into a ditch and overturned.

White was taken to Community Methodist Hospital in Paragound where he was treated for minor injuries.

In Butler County on Highway 67 four miles south of Poplar Bluff at 7:35 p.m. Ernest Raymond Reece, 49, of Fisk Route One, was reportedly driving his northbound car at an excessive rate of speed and ran off the road and overturned.

Reece received minor injuries and was taken to Veterans Administration Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Corps announces end of area food emergency

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — In telegrams to the governors and Congressional delegations of Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky, Col. A. C. Lehman, Memphis District Engineer, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, has announced that the flood emergency has ended for the portions of those six states that lie along the 355 miles of main stem Mississippii River within the Memphis District.

The district is responsible for the river from Cairo, Ill. to Rosedale, Miss., and has been in a flood fight mobilization since March 19.

"As of this date," said Col. Lehman, "conditions on the Mississippi River have improved to the point that these activities are no longer required in the Memphis District and normal activities are being resumed. We will continue to monitor overall Mississippi River conditions and will notify you if further emergency activities become necessary."

The crest was reached at Cairo on April 3 with a stage reading of 56.5 feet, second only to the 59.51 foot record set by the great 1937 flood. While over $2 million in damages were estimated from the flooding of 2¼ million acres in the Memphis District, it has been estimated that these damages would have reached over $11¾ million and flooding would have affected nearly seven million acres without the Corps' flood protection works.

In addition, it is also estimated that the total of 500 persons evacuated from their homes would have soared to some 84,000 persons had there been no flood protection available.

Council plans 2 hearings

The City council will meet twice today for public hearings on Sikeston's proposed application for a Community Development fund grant.

The first meeting will be at 4 p.m. The second will be at 7:30 p.m.

Representatives from Triangle Industries, Bond Broker George K. Baum & Co., Inc., and the city bonding attorneys will be present at the evening meeting to discuss the sale of the Triangle Industries bonds prior to the council approving the sale.

The bonds went on sale Thursday, following a private sale between Triangle and Baum & Co. The city had planned to sell the bonds by competitive bids.

The council is also expected to discuss the city trespassing code.

Hearnes denies owning $35,000 share in mine

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has denied a newspaper report that he ever owned a $35,000 share in a New Mexico copper mine in 1969.

Hearnes told The Associated Press Sunday night that he had once received by mail a share "worth about 100 bucks" in Commonwealth Mining, but did not keep it.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported Sunday that Hearnes was given a $35,000 share in the Commonwealth claim as part of a 1.6 per cent interest purchased by Gerald Lowther, a southwest Missouri Democratic figure. The sale, totaling more than $300,000, was made through Lowther's Founders of America Investment Corp., the newspaper said.

But Hearnes said Lowther told him Saturday that the investment firm had purchased 10 per cent of the mine for only $10,000 and that Hearnes' share was worth 1 per cent of the purchase.

"That made the thing I threw away worth about 100 bucks," Hearnes said.

Hearnes appeared voluntarily before a federal grand jury in Kansas City for three days last week.

Hearnes said the grand jury had asked him whether he owned any property in New Mexico and he had mentioned the share he received from Lowther.

"I said a friend of mine had sent me a piece of paper. I thought it was a joke. I threw it away," he said. "I never knew what it was worth until I asked Lowther Saturday."

Hearnes said he had no idea of the source for the Post-Dispatch story, but he issued a challenge.

"If Mr. Ron Lawrence (author of the Post-Dispatch story) can prove to the satisfaction of the IRS (Internal Revenue Service) that one per cent is worth $35,000, I'll donate it to a charity in St. Louis. It's either time for him to put up or shut up," Hearnes said.

Youth arrested; shot gas pump

BENTON — 20-year-old Timothy Carnell of Diehlstadt is in the Scott County Jail today after shooting holes in a gas pump at Nickerson Farms Saturday morning. He is being held under $20,000 bond.

The shooting kicked off a midmorning manhunt by county deputies and members of the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

Deputy Roger Bartlo said the shooting occurred at 9:25 a.m. and that Carnell was arrested at 12:10 p.m.

The highway patrol airplane was pressed into service after it was learned that the subject had a considerable amount of ammunition and was fleeing through the fields near Benton.

"He looked like a commando," Deputy Bartlo said. "He had binoculars and 500 rounds of .22 caliber ammunition for a .22 pistol and 80 rounds of 30-30 ammo." The deputy related how the subject told of wanting to get on the water tower in Benton, but said the ladder had been removed.

The plane spotted the subject in a field about two and one-half miles north of Benton about noon and he was arrested by deputy Bartlo about 10 minutes later. "He threw down his weapon and didn't resist," the deputy said.

2 arrested, released

Police took two young men into custody Saturday night for possession of marijuana after their car stopped on the taxiway at the Sikeston Airport.

The two were later released until police decided if they have enough evidence for a case.

Police said two officers saw the car's headlights on the north end of the taxiway and went out to investigate. As the police car approached, the car moved south along the taxiway. The car passed the police car, and after it did, officer saw someone throw a package out the door.

Police stopped the car and picked up the package which contained what looked like marijuana and a small pipe.

The award was made on the work done for the party, the publicity work during the last election, and for events sponsored, Taylor said.

Jim Moore accepted the award for Taylor, who was ill.

There is a growing tendency for newspapers, columnists and television to downgrade the CIA and the FBI. True, they have faults but the FBI is rated the best of its kind in the world and the CIA is our only protection against subversion and radical groups. There is a difference between radicalism and treason and to date the government has been lenient. Every effort has been made to give the far left the benefit of the doubt and most of these people have stayed out of jail.

Loyal Americans should remember that Communism will not prevail in this country as long as the CIA and the FBI are operating full strength.

Due to governmental regulations, it is becoming harder and harder for big and smaller businesses to operate profitably. It seems Uncle Sam has his nose in a wide range of businesses and also State and Municipal governments. Everywhere you turn you see this snooping by the Federal government.

All this costs business lots of money which they pass on to their customers. In food products, a little bad publicity can ruin a company and in some instances has. The same is true of drugs.

Every business today has mountains of bookkeeping and it's getting worse.

We believe business should be given a freer rein and let the buying public decide whether they are doing a good job.

Today, Americans are enjoying for the most part the best products in the world at the lowest price.

Unless the big companies operate at a profit they are forced to employ fewer people. Foreign cars are going great guns in the U.S. today but every time an import is sold several Americans lose jobs.

Our nation today relies on big corporations to make the economy tick. With a country of 200 million people plus we must have large industries working efficiently to feed, clothe and house the multitudes. Take away the large corporations and you would soon see a second Russia. Order a car in Russia and it takes from one to two years delivery. It is next to impossible to get parts and most are faulty. The same is true of farm machinery.

We're sold on America. With all our faults we somehow work them out, most of the time the hard way.

To those who believe in freedom, it is apparent that government must cease being hostile to business and start helping create a better feeling for those who keep the home fires burning.

RURAL SENATORS DEMAND CRTIMINAL PENALITIES FOR POSSESSION LAXATIVES

The Missouri Senate today passed a bill which would apply criminal penalties to people caught using laxatives or who are caught with laxatives in their possession.

A similar measure has already passed the House.

The bills were introduced after the Food and Drug Administration announcement that prolonged use of laxatives could lead to "serious life-threatening situations." Scientists found that 21 of 101 ingredients in popular laxatives are "either unsafe or ineffective."

Despite efforts by some urban area Senators to make use or possession of laxatives only a misdemeanor, rural area Senators demanded the criminal penalties.

They will be the same as applied to marijuana in Missouri, a Golden Valley area legislator told The Democrat, including both fines and jail sentences.

He said the Legislature also plans to set up a special police force, to work with the Highway Patrol, to help catch and arrests Missourians who use laxatives, sell laxatives or have laxatives in their possession.

In a special press conference called today, three Democratic Senators expressed concern that a number of Missouri's older residents had rented the State Fair grounds in July to hold a Lawrence Welk concert.

.."Without doubt," Senator Elmer Bilkingham said, "this concert will be used as a cover-up so Missourians can illegally purchase and take laxatives on the Fair Grounds. If you think we had a clean-up problem last summer, just wait until July."

..They blamed the Governor's office for allowing rental of the grounds for the Welk concert.

"He's brought in all these pointy-headed intellectual Easterners who went to dangerous schools like Harvard to help run Missouri," said Senator Marvin Gotomeand-mother, who added "those boys don't know nothin' about the Real World out here west of Pittsburgh."

The L.E.A.A. plans special courses soon for area lawmen on how to ferret out people who use laxatives or who might have laxatives in there possession.

Fear has been expressed that many oldsters not being able to buy their usual X-Lax or Milk of Magnesia would try to secretely make old-time remedies at home.

This will also be illegal, if the new law is signed by the Governor.

SECURE YOUR HOME AGAINST ROBBERS WHEN YOU VACATION

..People planning to take vacations this spring should take extra precautions to prevent home burglaries, warns Pinkerton's, Inc., the private security firm.

John Hitt, vice president for security, suggests taking the following steps to secure your home and make it appear that someone is there.

- Encourage neighbors to use your driveway for overnight parking. This will make it appear that you are home.

- Use automatic timing or electric eye devices to operate several house lights at night.

- Leave curtains open at least part way. Closed blinds make an effective screen for the burglar once he is inside.

- Close and lock all doors, including the garage, tool shed and other work shelters. Use pin tumble, cylinder locks on outside entrances and safety latches on windows. The main entrance should be bolted as well as locked.

- Stop all deliveries.

-Don't leave notes tacked up conspicuously for mailmen or other services.

The Voice of Eisleben

A discouraged choirmaster closed his organ at the end of the rehearsal. The choristers were hurriedly putting on hats and coats, eager to go their several ways. Suddenly a boy's clear voice rang out in joyous son in the street outside Eisleben church.

" Bring that singer in that I may speak with him," the master said.

The cantor went in search of the singer, who came readily at his bidding and stood attentively before the man still seated on the organbench.

"What is your name?" the choirmaster asked.

"Martin Luther, sir," was the reply.

"Who taught you to sing?"

"No one taught me, sir. i like to sing, and foten earn a few coins by singing in the streets."

"Would you like to sing in my choir?" asked the master.

:"I'd be very glad for the chance, sir," Martin answered gratefully.

"Then report for rehearsal Saturday afternoon."

And in this manner Martin Luther was introduced to the Eisleben church choir, and to the world of song.

Luther was born of sturdy peasant stock in the village of Eisleben, Saony, in the year 1483. His father practiced careful economy during his soon's youth in order to give him a college education. Besides singing in the choir of Eisleben, Martin also learned to play on the flute and the lute. He was entered in the University of Erfurt for the purpose of studying law; but in 1505 he left the university and became a monk in the Augustinian monastery at Erfurt. He was called from the monastery to become an instructor in the newly established University of Wittenberg. There he was seized with a spirit of unrest, and while studying the Bible he received a new and original conception of the meaning of the Scriptures, which led to his break with the then established church.

With the ideals of the Reformation sweeping over the world, Luther was quick to see that congregational singing must become an effective part of all worship. In 1524 Luther's first hymnbook was published. It was printed on three sheets, and contained the words and music of eight new and orginial congregational hymns. Later there appeared from a Wittenberg press, and published under Luther's direction, a book of sacred songs for three, four, and five voices.

Martin Luther was a great music lover and an ardent composer. Music to hiim was not only a divine revelation but an aesthetic necessity. He wrote both words and music for his mighty chorale, "A Mighty Lortress Is Our God," which is still found in many hymnals.

Luther died at Eisleben in 1546. His remains were taken to Wittenberg and buried in the Schloss-Kirche. During the burial services three great bands played "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God" in unison.

Helping The Poor?
Gov't Finally Admits Minimum of Billion Dollars Stolen From Welfare Yearly.

WASHINGTON - Finally we've lifted the cover-up over at the Health, Education and Welfare Department to get someone there to admit officially that at least $1 billion is being stolen from "welfare" annually by ripoff specialists in living off the people's taxes.

Question now is -- why isn't this probe-happy Congress investigating the welfare department, its special Social and Rehabilitation Service and those in its comfortable woodwork who have steadily rejected evidence of such massive thievery? Why have they constantly hidden behind the sloganeering of allegedly not wanting to hurt "the poor" when the bureaucracy's inaction (or worse) has not only deprived the poor of desperately needed assistance but has dumped a horrendous tax burden on thousands of financially depressed communities.

In the "welfare" department's first state- by state report the other day, ther is the admission of the billion-dollar looting. But this is a drop in the budget bucket. Actually the service administers some $25 billion worthof welfare aid to families with dependent children, Medicaid, child assistance, etc., each year.

Actually the margin for error has been some 41 per cent ineligibility. This means that millions of persons have had incomes high enough to care for themselves or have schemed to defraud the government.

There is no way yet to apply the 41 per cent error rate to the total $25 billion figure. But certainly it insinuates far more than a billion dollars a year loss. But even the billion mark is a welcome admission. Now that James Dwight, Jr., who heads the Social Service, is resigning, perhaps he will tell us why there hasn't been more activve probing, swifter crackdowns and admission of vast thievery -- much of which has been exposed in this column.

A brutal cynicism has set in like lava molds on the sides of the money- spouting government volcano.

Tens of billions of dollars could have been saved just by moving four or five years ago as the Welfare Department is finally now, with early-warning fraud systems, specials regional fraud investigatory units and searchers for "absent fathers." The money could have been saved or recovered in huge lumps with simple use of computers.

In California, for example, the state government, mostly under Ronaid Reagan, saved $100 million in three years by tracking down swiftly disappearing fathers.

When New York officials finally were needled into action in the past few years they discovered that finding absentee parents was as easy as a Houdini rope trick. Last year, New York saved $26.2 million by recovering the absent parent and forcing him or her to support their children.

However, this turns out to be the proverbial peanuts. Now Medicaid is the ripoff thing.

New York's acting welfare inspector general Ralph Cipriani tells me he suspects there may be as much as 50 per cent thievery or inelibility. And that means enough stolen millions to provide some bread for all America's jobless.

In New York state alone the "welfare" bill runs to $5.8 billion a year. At the rate of say, 30 per cent ineligibility, the looting should be sufficiently awesome to interest some congressiona committee seeking to aid the people. Or are the Houses of Congress still squabbling over who will look into what in the CIA, the FBI and the National Security Council?

Think not that I have been dealing in ultimate figures here. Word from the House of Rperesentatives is that its Budget Committee has aproved a request for $124 billion for welfare and other social and income security programs in fiscal 1976.

How much will that add to the HEW's $25 billion now being spent annually? Shouldn't one apply the percentage of error and ineligibility and sheer fraud to the newly proposed Niagara of billions?

Certainly this dinosaurian amount calls for some sort of congressional select committee probe of the expenditures. Few states, for example, have met the HEW target date for error containment report and counteraction.

Further, what of the enormous outlay of administrative costs in this flood of "welfare" money? The food stamp program over in the Agricultural Department costs the nation and states some $400 million to administer. Why? And this is Lilliputian compared with the HEW outlay.

There are reports of intricate networks of political coverups, welfare patronage delivered in what remains of district clubs, underworld operations in the nursing home field and vast overpaying of Medicaid "vendor" bills.

All this in a record-breaking budget- deficit fiscal year. Hundreds of millions of dollars could be saved the nation's taxpayers by simple administrative improvements such as were forced on the city of New York where some 10,000 persons were severed from the welfare roles for thievery and ineligibility this past year. Another 30,000 persons were cut from the nation's roles elsewhere. There must be a better way to help one's fellow man and woman than by supporting the new class of ripoffs.

Why not a congressional select investigatory committee? Now!

No Inheritance For Jacqueline

By Jack Anderson with Less Whitten

WASHINGTON - For a moment in history, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis was superb. The nation will not soon forget that time of shock and grief after Dallas when she rose above the shattering personal ordeal to give those bitter hours a presence of dignity and nobility which has become part of our national heritage.

And there were other mements, too, when this most beautiful of First Ladies helped to weave the spell -- that mixture of high purpose, vaulting aspirations and joy in life and the battle -- that was once called Camelot.

For the Kennedy legions who look to her as the keeper of the legend and to the millions who saw her as a latter-day Madonna, her sudden marriage to Aristotle Onassis -- the aging, alien gnome of colossal wealth and sinister reputation -- clouded the vision of Camelot.

Reassuring explanations were put out about the bereaved widow's need for a quiet haven, about Onassis' submerged irresistability. But the matriarch Rose Kennedy spoke for the majority when, after akindly reference to Onassis, she expressed her reaction to the marriage: "I was completely surprised. In fact, I was stunned and then perplexed."

Up to now, out ofrespect for what once was, we have been content to let the matter rest there in a merciful fog. But we never doubted that the time would come when the full story, even if it turned out to be unfavorable, would be told.

For Mrs. JFK is forever a historical figure, whose entire life will be studied as diligently as, for instance, the lives of Mary Todd Lincoln and Eleanor Roosevelt continue to be.

To the historical interest is now joined a current public interest in discovering the disposition and control of one of the world's greatest financial empires.

We have interviewed doxens of intimates of both Jacqueline and Aristotle Onassis. We have reviewed som e of some of Jackie's personal letters and have examined other private documents. Witnesses have given us detailed accounts of Ari's most private conversations. Every fact to be cited here, and in columns to come, has been corroborated by two or more independent, competent witnesses.

We can reveal that Jacqueline Onassis will not control any part of the Onassis empire, nor is it planned that she will receive an in heritance of any significance. The keys to that kingdom will be held by the departed shipping magnate's daughter, Christina.

Jackie has not been left distitute, however. For she carefully provided for herself in advance of her remarriage. Sources close to the couple say she wheedled a pre-nuptial commitment from Ari. As he later recounted to intimates, she pleaded that the marriage would cost her the support of the Kennedys and that she simply had to have some money of her own.

Thus, the marriage was preceded by a premarital contract as solemn and encompassing as the leasing of one of Ari's prize supertankers. The first draft was typed up in September 1968 by Onassis' secretary, Lynn Alpha, who had instructions to deliver it to Jackie's financial adviser, Andre Meyer, at New York City's elegant Carlyle Hotel.

We reached the secretary, now Mrs. Lynn Smith, who confirmed that she had typed the document and delivered it to the Carlyle for Meyer, but she refused to comment further. We asked Meyer whether he had received the contract. "Never! never! never!" he protested in an emphatic French accent. He denied any knowledge of the document.

The centerpiece of the premarital contract was a hugh financial settlement on Jackie. One source who saw a draft of the contract suggested that the amount was around $20 million. But sources close to the Onassis financial operations say Jackie received a flat $3 million in tax-free bonds.

Additionally, some sources said, each of Jacqueline's children would receive the interest on a $1 million trust fund until age 21 when the payments will cease and the principle will revert to the Onassis estate.

Jackie also received a monthly allowance, which started out at $30,000, tax-free, disbursed by Onassis' New York office. Later, our sources say, Onassis became angry over Jackie's prodigal spending and moved her account to his Monte Carlo office where he could watch it more closely. He also scaled down her allowance, according to our sources, to about $20,000 a month.

With the disarming coquetry for which she is famous, Jackie Onassis often complained about her money problems. Upon the recommendation of a Kennedy family financial adviser, but against Ari's advice, she invested in the stock market and lost a reported $300,000. She pleaded with Ari, say our sources, to make up the loss which he refused to do, saying she should have left it in the tax free bonds.

She also found her allowance inadequate. Often before the month was up she would send aide Nancy Tuckerman, who was on the payroll of Onassis' Olympic Airlines for about $20,000 a year, to Ari's New York management for funds.

Sometimes Mrs. Tuckerman would show up no more than 15 days after the allowance had been received to beg for more money from Ari's financial man, Creon Broun. Sources who heard her appeals describe them as harrowing. "Things simply can't go on this way at the house any longer," she would say in protest against Ari's alleged parsimony.

At first the kindly Broun advanced money until Ari put a stop to it. Mrs. Tuckerman insisted to us that she had gone to Broun for money no more than once or twice in January to pay Jackie's Christmas bills. But sources who saw her in the New York office say she became a "pest" pleading for money.

Our sources report that Onassis was superstitious about wills and that none has been found.

There will be more details in future columns.

There is a growing tendency for newspapers, columnists and television to downgrade the CIA and the FBI. True, they have faults but the FBI is rated the best of its kind in the world and the CIA is our only protection against subversion and radical groups. There is a difference between radicalism and treason and to date the government has been lenient. Every effort has been made to give the far left the benefit of the doubt and most of these people have stayed out of jail.

Loyal Americans should remember that Communism will not prevail in this country as long as the CIA and the FBI are operating full strength.

Due to governmental regulations, it is becoming harder and harder for big and smaller businesses to operate profitably. It seems Uncle Sam has his nose in a wide range of businesses and also State and Municipal governments. Everywhere you turn you see this snooping by the Federal government.

All this costs business lots of money which they pass on to their customers. In food products, a little bad publicity can ruin a company and in some instances has. The same is true of drugs.

Every business today has mountains of bookkeeping and it's getting worse.

We believe business should be given a freer rein and let the buying public decide whether they are doing a good job.

Today, Americans are enjoying for the most part the best products in the world at the lowest price.

Unless the big companies operate at a profit they are forced to employ fewer people. Foreign cars are going great guns in the U.S. today but every time an import is sold several Americans lose jobs.

Our nation today relies on big corporations to make the economy tick. With a country of 200 million people plus we must have large industries working efficiently to feed, clothe and house the multitudes. Take away the large corporations and you would soon see a second Russia. Order a car in Russia and it takes from one to two years delivery. It is next to impossible to get parts and most are faulty. The same is true of farm machinery.

We're sold on America. With all our faults we somehow work them out, most of the time the hard way.

To those who believe in freedom, it is apparent that government must cease being hostile to business and start helping create a better feeling for those who keep the home fires burning.

RURAL SENATORS DEMAND CRTIMINAL PENALITIES FOR POSSESSION LAXATIVES

The Missouri Senate today passed a bill which would apply criminal penalties to people caught using laxatives or who are caught with laxatives in their possession.

A similar measure has already passed the House.

The bills were introduced after the Food and Drug Administration announcement that prolonged use of laxatives could lead to "serious life-threatening situations." Scientists found that 21 of 101 ingredients in popular laxatives are "either unsafe or ineffective."

Despite efforts by some urban area Senators to make use or possession of laxatives only a misdemeanor, rural area Senators demanded the criminal penalties.

They will be the same as applied to marijuana in Missouri, a Golden Valley area legislator told The Democrat, including both fines and jail sentences.

He said the Legislature also plans to set up a special police force, to work with the Highway Patrol, to help catch and arrests Missourians who use laxatives, sell laxatives or have laxatives in their possession.

In a special press conference called today, three Democratic Senators expressed concern that a number of Missouri's older residents had rented the State Fair grounds in July to hold a Lawrence Welk concert.

..."Without doubt," Senator Elmer Bilkingham said, "this concert will be used as a cover-up so Missourians can illegally purchase and take laxatives on the Fair Grounds. If you think we had a clean-up problem last summer, just wait until July."

..They blamed the Governor's office for allowing rental of the grounds for the Welk concert.

"He's brought in all these pointy-headed intellectual Easterners who went to dangerous schools like Harvard to help run Missouri," said Senator Marvin Gotomeandmother, who added "those boys don't know nothin' about the Real World out here west of Pittsburgh."

The L.E.A.A. plans special courses soon for area lawmen on how to ferret out people who use laxatives or who might have laxatives in there possession.

Fear has been expressed that many oldsters not being able to buy their usual X-Lax or Milk of Magnesia would try to secretely make old-time remedies at home.

This will also be illegal, if the new law is signed by the Governor.

SECURE YOUR HOME AGAINST ROBBERS WHEN YOU VACATION

..People planning to take vacations this spring should take extra precautions to prevent home burglaries, warns Pinkerton's, Inc., the private security firm.

John Hitt, vice president for security, suggests taking the following steps to secure your home and make it appear that someone is there.

- Encourage neighbors to use your driveway for overnight parking. This will make it appear that you are home.

- Use automatic timing or electric eye devices to operate several house lights at night.

- Leave curtains open at least part way. Closed blinds make an effective screen for the burglar once he is inside.

- Close and lock all doors, including the garage, tool shed and other work shelters. Use pin tumble, cylinder locks on outside entrances and safety latches on windows. The main entrance should be bolted as well as locked.

- Stop all deliveries.

-Don't leave notes tacked up conspicuously for mailmen or other services.

The Voice of Eisleben

A discouraged choirmaster closed his organ at the end of the rehearsal. The choristers were hurriedly putting on hats and coats, eager to go their several ways. Suddenly a boy's clear voice rang out in joyous son in the street outside Eisleben church.

" Bring that singer in that I may speak with him," the master said.

The cantor went in search of the singer, who came readily at his bidding and stood attentively before the man still seated on the organbench.

"What is your name?" the choirmaster asked.

"Martin Luther, sir," was the reply.

"Who taught you to sing?"

"No one taught me, sir. i like to sing, and foten earn a few coins by singing in the streets."

"Would you like to sing in my choir?" asked the master.

:"I'd be very glad for the chance, sir," Martin answered gratefully.

"Then report for rehearsal Saturday afternoon."

And in this manner Martin Luther was introduced to the Eisleben church choir, and to the world of song.

Luther was born of sturdy peasant stock in the village of Eisleben, Saony, in the year 1483. His father practiced careful economy during his soon's youth in order to give him a college education. Besides singing in the choir of Eisleben, Martin also learned to play on the flute and the lute. He was entered in the University of Erfurt for the purpose of studying law; but in 1505 he left the university and became a monk in the Augustinian monastery at Erfurt. He was called from the monastery to become an instructor in the newly established University of Wittenberg. There he was seized with a spirit of unrest, and while studying the Bible he received a new and original conception of the meaning of the Scriptures, which led to his break with the then established church.

With the ideals of the Reformation sweeping over the world, Luther was quick to see that congregational singing must become an effective part of all worship. In 1524 Luther's first hymnbook was published. It was printed on three sheets, and contained the words and music of eight new and orginial congregational hymns. Later there appeared from a Wittenberg press, and published under Luther's direction, a book of sacred songs for three, four, and five voices.

Martin Luther was a great music lover and an ardent composer. Music to hiim was not only a divine revelation but an aesthetic necessity. He wrote both words and music for his mighty chorale, "A Mighty Lortress Is Our God," which is still found in many hymnals.

Luther died at Eisleben in 1546. His remains were taken to Wittenberg and buried in the Schloss-Kirche. During the burial services three great bands played "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God" in unison.

No Inheritance For Jacqueline

By Jack Anderson with Less Whitten

WASHINGTON - For a moment in history, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis was superb. The nation will not soon forget that time of shock and grief after Dallas when she rose above the shattering personal ordeal to give those bitter hours a presence of dignity and nobility which has become part of our national heritage.

And there were other mements, too, when this most beautiful of First Ladies helped to weave the spell -- that mixture of high purpose, vaulting aspirations and joy in life and the battle -- that was once called Camelot.

For the Kennedy legions who look to her as the keeper of the legend and to the millions who saw her as a latter-day Madonna, her sudden marriage to Aristotle Onassis -- the aging, alien gnome of colossal wealth and sinister reputation -- clouded the vision of Camelot.

Reassuring explanations were put out about the bereaved widow's need for a quiet haven, about Onassis' submerged irresistability. But the matriarch Rose Kennedy spoke for the majority when, after akindly reference to Onassis, she expressed her reaction to the marriage: "I was completely surprised. In fact, I was stunned and then perplexed."

Up to now, out ofrespect for what once was, we have been content to let the matter rest there in a merciful fog. But we never doubted that the time would come when the full story, even if it turned out to be unfavorable, would be told.

For Mrs. JFK is forever a historical figure, whose entire life will be studied as diligently as, for instance, the lives of Mary Todd Lincoln and Eleanor Roosevelt continue to be.

To the historical interest is now joined a current public interest in discovering the disposition and control of one of the world's greatest financial empires.

We have interviewed doxens of intimates of both Jacqueline and Aristotle Onassis. We have reviewed som e of some of Jackie's personal letters and have examined other private documents. Witnesses have given us detailed accounts of Ari's most private conversations. Every fact to be cited here, and in columns to come, has been corroborated by two or more independent, competent witnesses.

We can reveal that Jacqueline Onassis will not control any part of the Onassis empire, nor is it planned that she will receive an in heritance of any significance. The keys to that kingdom will be held by the departed shipping magnate's daughter, Christina.

Jackie has not been left distitute, however. For she carefully provided for herself in advance of her remarriage. Sources close to the couple say she wheedled a pre-nuptial commitment from Ari. As he later recounted to intimates, she pleaded that the marriage would cost her the support of the Kennedys and that she simply had to have some money of her own.

Thus, the marriage was preceded by a premarital contract as solemn and encompassing as the leasing of one of Ari's prize supertankers. The first draft was typed up in September 1968 by Onassis' secretary, Lynn Alpha, who had instructions to deliver it to Jackie's financial adviser, Andre Meyer, at New York City's elegant Carlyle Hotel.

We reached the secretary, now Mrs. Lynn Smith, who confirmed that she had typed the document and delivered it to the Carlyle for Meyer, but she refused to comment further. We asked Meyer whether he had received the contract. "Never! never! never!" he protested in an emphatic French accent. He denied any knowledge of the document.

The centerpiece of the premarital contract was a hugh financial settlement on Jackie. One source who saw a draft of the contract suggested that the amount was around $20 million. But sources close to the Onassis financial operations say Jackie received a flat $3 million in tax-free bonds.

Additionally, some sources said, each of Jacqueline's children would receive the interest on a $1 million trust fund until age 21 when the payments will cease and the principle will revert to the Onassis estate.

Jackie also received a monthly allowance, which started out at $30,000, tax-free, disbursed by Onassis' New York office. Later, our sources say, Onassis became angry over Jackie's prodigal spending and moved her account to his Monte Carlo office where he could watch it more closely. He also scaled down her allowance, according to our sources, to about $20,000 a month.

With the disarming coquetry for which she is famous, Jackie Onassis often complained about her money problems. Upon the recommendation of a Kennedy family financial adviser, but against Ari's advice, she invested in the stock market and lost a reported $300,000. She pleaded with Ari, say our sources, to make up the loss which he refused to do, saying she should have left it in the tax free bonds.

She also found her allowance inadequate. Often before the month was up she would send aide Nancy Tuckerman, who was on the payroll of Onassis' Olympic Airlines for about $20,000 a year, to Ari's New York management for funds.

Sometimes Mrs. Tuckerman would show up no more than 15 days after the allowance had been received to beg for more money from Ari's financial man, Creon Broun. Sources who heard her appeals describe them as harrowing. "Things simply can't go on this way at the house any longer," she would say in protest against Ari's alleged parsimony.

At first the kindly Broun advanced money until Ari put a stop to it. Mrs. Tuckerman insisted to us that she had gone to Broun for money no more than once or twice in January to pay Jackie's Christmas bills. But sources who saw her in the New York office say she became a "pest" pleading for money.

Our sources report that Onassis was superstitious about wills and that none has been found.

There will be more details in future columns.

Helping The Poor?
Gov't Finally Admits Minimum of Billion Dollars Stolen From Welfare Yearly.

WASHINGTON - Finally we've lifted the cover-up over at the Health, Education and Welfare Department to get someone there to admit officially that at least $1 billion is being stolen from "welfare" annually by ripoff specialists in living off the people's taxes.

Question now is -- why isn't this probe-happy Congress investigating the welfare department, its special Social and Rehabilitation Service and those in its comfortable woodwork who have steadily rejected evidence of such massive thievery? Why have they constantly hidden behind the sloganeering of allegedly not wanting to hurt "the poor" when the bureaucracy's inaction (or worse) has not only deprived the poor of desperately needed assistance but has dumped a horrendous tax burden on thousands of financially depressed communities.

In the "welfare" department's first state- by state report the other day, ther is the admission of the billion-dollar looting. But this is a drop in the budget bucket. Actually the service administers some $25 billion worthof welfare aid to families with dependent children, Medicaid, child assistance, etc., each year.

Actually the margin for error has been some 41 per cent ineligibility. This means that millions of persons have had incomes high enough to care for themselves or have schemed to defraud the government.

There is no way yet to apply the 41 per cent error rate to the total $25 billion figure. But certainly it insinuates far more than a billion dollars a year loss. But even the billion mark is a welcome admission. Now that James Dwight, Jr., who heads the Social Service, is resigning, perhaps he will tell us why there hasn't been more activve probing, swifter crackdowns and admission of vast thievery -- much of which has been exposed in this column.

A brutal cynicism has set in like lava molds on the sides of the money- spouting government volcano.

Tens of billions of dollars could have been saved just by moving four or five years ago as the Welfare Department is finally now, with early-warning fraud systems, specials regional fraud investigatory units and searchers for "absent fathers." The money could have been saved or recovered in huge lumps with simple use of computers.

In California, for example, the state government, mostly under Ronald Reagan, saved $100 million in three years by tracking down swiftly disappearing fathers.

When New York officials finally were needled into action in the past few years they discovered that finding absentee parents was as easy as a Houdini rope trick. Last year, New York saved $26.2 million by recovering the absent parent and forcing him or her to support their children.

However, this turns out to be the proverbial peanuts. Now Medicaid is the ripoff thing.

New York's acting welfare inspector general Ralph Cipriani tells me he suspects there may be as much as 50 per cent thievery or inelibility. And that means enough stolen millions to provide some bread for all America's jobless.

In New York state alone the "welfare" bill runs to $5.8 billion a year. At the rate of say, 30 per cent ineligibility, the looting should be sufficiently awesome to interest some congressional committee seeking to aid the people. Or are the Houses of Congress still squabbling over who will look into what in the CIA, the FBI and the National Security Council?

Think not that I have been dealing in ultimate figures here. Word from the House of Rperesentatives is that its Budget Committee has aproved a request for $124 billion for welfare and other social and income security programs in fiscal 1976.

How much will that add to the HEW's $25 billion now being spent annually? Shouldn't one apply the percentage of error and ineligibility and sheer fraud to the newly proposed Niagara of billions?

Certainly this dinosaurian amount calls for some sort of congressional select committee probe of the expenditures. Few states, for example, have met the HEW target date for error containment report and counteraction.

Further, what of the enormous outlay of administrative costs in this flood of "welfare" money? The food stamp program over in the Agricultural Department costs the nation and states some $400 million to administer. Why? And this is Lilliputian compared with the HEW outlay.

There are reports of intricate networks of political coverups, welfare patronage delivered in what remains of district clubs, underworld operations in the nursing home field and vast overpaying of Medicaid "vendor" bills.

All this in a record-breaking budget- deficit fiscal year. Hundreds of millions of dollars could be saved the nation's taxpayers by simple administrative improvements such as were forced on the city of New York where some 10,000 persons were severed from the welfare roles for thievery and ineligibility this past year. Another 30,000 persons were cut from the nation's roles elsewhere. There must be a better way to help one's fellow man and woman than by supporting the new class of ripoffs.

Why not a congressional select investigatory committee? Now!

Billie Jean, female pros talk tennis

Jackie Schoeneman
Women's Editor

On first look, "Tennis for Women," edited by Ford Hovis, seems like a storybook with its glossy jacket, individual whole-page snapshots and action sequences of women tennis players.

And, quite naturally, it is filled with storybook characters -- the kind you ooh and aah at and think, if I only had that much talent.....

Once you stop looking at the pictures and start reading the print, however, you find it is an instructional anthology by the 10 best tennis players on the 1974 Women's Pro Tour. For instance, there are such chapters as "Doubles" by Betty Stove, number one in the Netherlands and winner of the 1972 Wimbledon, French and U.S. double titles; and "The backhand" by Wendy Overton, ranked fifth in the U.S. and tenth in the world, (who says the backhand is the easiest stroke in tennis and should be taught along with the forehand, not after). Even sword-tongued Rosie Casals tones her sarcasm down to give straight-forward advice on the importance of an aggressive volley.

Conspicuously absent are Billie Jean King, Margaret Court and Chris Evert. But their absence is refreshing for a change and makes you realize other women have "practiced four to five hours a day, seven days a week for 10 to 20 years" to become greats in the tennis world. Possibly to reinforce this point, the editor, in each player's short biography, measures her accomplishments by listing how many times she has beaten Billie Jean, Chris Evert or Mrs. Court.

Billie Jean King

As expected, the book reeks ever so slightly of Women's Lib, as Nancy Richey Gunter, ranked second in the U.S., illustrates in the introduction:

"It strikes me that most existing books on tennis have been written by men. It seems to me only natural that women can learn more about tennis by watching others women play than they can by watching men. It also seems natural to me that women can enjoy more, understand better and gain more from a book written by other women."

In addition, "You've come a long way, baby" seems to be a central theme -- Mrs. Gunter cites these statistics:

"A few years ago, there was only $2,000 in prize money for the months of September through May for women tennis pros, while during the same period men tennis pros were competing for $250,000. In 1973 the amount of prize money changes dramatically and women were competing for $1 million."

She does have a point, however, to which each chapter is geared. Because women are women, they play tennis differently. Mrs. Gunter points out women do not have the power and speed of the men's game although women are not completely devoid of these attributes. Women's games are built more on stategy and the points last longer because the players are probing for each other's weaknesses.

Although the "women are special" approach is justified, one still keeps waiting for a foldout spread of Bobby Riggs popping vitamin pills to jump out.

Serving as a release from technique, a chapter is devoted to exercising and tips on how to dress and beat the scorching heat of a tennis court. The last chapter, "A Wrap-up," summarizes each player's main points, useful forquick reviewing after the first careful reading of the book.

The book is not for beginners but for the woman who has learned the fundamentals and is ready for the extra polish of the pros. Beginners will just have to be content looking at the pictures and hoping someday they will graduate to the world of "Tennis for Women."

Ann Landers

Mother urges immunization

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this letter. It might help millions of children.

Dear ..Mother -- Somewhere: Today my baby is very sick and it's your fault. He may be totally deaf as a result of his illness, and that's your fault, too.

My son is ten months old, too young to be immunized against measles. But YOUR child who was "just getting a bad cold" was well over that age when they played together at the laundromat.

Why on earth didn't you see to it that your child had the vaccine as soon as he reached his first birthday? Don't tell me you couldn't afford it. Our own Public Health Department charges 50 cents. If you can't pay, they will give the shot free.

I'm glad your child recovered from the measles "just fine." I am happy for you. But my little one is desperately ill. He will live, the doctor told us this morning, but he'll probably suffer from a serious hearing impairment for the rest of his life.

How will I explain to my son that he is handicapped because some thoughtless, irresponsible mother didn't bother to have her child immunized and he caught the illness from him?

I'm not writing to you personally. I am sending my letter to Ann Landers because this problem is beigger than our own two children. It involves all children everywhere. -- Heartsick Mother

Dear Mother: I'm printing your letter because I believe it is an extremely important one.

My consultant for this response is Dr. John Andrews, a pediatrician in Chicago who has taken mighty good care of my three grandchildren.

Dr. Andrews says you are correct -- no child should be immunized against measels until he has reached his first birthday. Immediately thereafter, however, he can and should be protected. Usually the one shot also includes immunization against Rubella and mumps as well. This protects the child FOR LIFE against these three diseases.

Most Public Health Departments (city or county -- look in the phone book) will give the shots free if you cannot afford to pay a nominal fee. Of course all practicing pediatricians will give the shots, but it costs considerably more since the vaccine is expensive.

Thank you for writing. I urge every mother who reads this column to immediately immunize every child who has passed his first birthday.

Dear Ann Landers: I take exception to your comments which were a giant putdown to ice hockey and its fans. No hockey fan worth his salt wants to see injuries occur. Hockey is, however, a contact sport, and injuries are unavoidable.

A case in point: Recently a visiting team's player was injured at Madison Square Garden. As he was taken off the ice, the New York fans gave him a standing ovation. Does that sound like "bloodthirsty sadism"?

If you want blood, don't go to a hockey game -- go to a prize fight where grown men beat each other senseless for millions of dollars. I suggest ten knocks with an ice-cold hockey puck for you, Kiddo. Signed -- Irate Ranger Fan

Dear Irate: Thanks for expressing your point of view. But please don't send me to any prize fights. That is the ultimate in legalized mayhem and manslaughter.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers's booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

LIGHT SUPPER
Fish Chowder
Salad Bowl — Bread Tray
Otameal Tube Cake

OATMEAL TUBE CAKE

1 cup boiling water
¾ cup quick oats
1-3rd cup butter or margarine
½ cup granulated sugar
½ cup firmly packed light or dark brown sugar
¾ teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
1¼ cups flour, stir to aerate before measuring
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1-3rd cup chopped pecans
1-3rd cup flaked coconut

Pour boiling water over oats; cover and let stand 20 minutes. Cream butter and sugars; beat in vanilla and eggs. Add oats mixture; mix well. Stir together flour, soda, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg; add to butter mixture, mixing well. Stir in pecans and coconut. Turn into a greased and floured 6-cup fluted tube pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven about 50 minutes. Cool 5 minutes; remove from pan; cool completely. Frost with confectioners' sugar glaze and sprinkle with extra pecans or coconut.

HEARTY DINNER
Barbecue Beef — Noodles
Green Beans — Salad
Bread Tray
Frosted Chocolate Cake

BARBECUE BEEF

A thrifty lean cut of beef goes a long way.

4-pound bottom round beef roast
1 tablespoon salad oil
1½ cups or a 14-ounce bottle catchup
¾ cup water
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
6 whole cloves
2 whole allspice
1 bay leaf
Chili powder to taste

Trim excess fat from beef. In a large heavy ovenproof saucepot or casserole heat oil; add beef and brown on all sides. Remove beef and pour off fat. Return beef to saucepot and add remaining ingredients. Cover tightly and bake in a 325-degree oven until tender — 2½ to 3 hours; to test doneness cut a small slice from beef because it will not respond to the usual fork test. Chill beef and sauce separately. Remove hardened fat from sauce; remove spices. Heat sauce, adding chili powder to taste; slice beef, or as much of it as will be needed, and heat in sauce. Leftover beef not added to the sauce makes delicious sandwiches.

Dear Ann Landers: I take exception to your comments which were a giant putdown to ice hockey and its fans. No hockey fan worth his salt wants to see injuries occur. Hockey is, however, a contact sport, and injuries are unavoidable.

A case in point: Recently a visiting team's player was injured at Madison Square Garden. As he was taken off the ice, the New York fans gave him a standing ovation. Does that sound like "bloodthirsty sadism"?

If you want blood, don't go to a hockey game -- go to a prize fight where grown men beat each other senseless for millions of dollars. I suggest ten knocks with an ice-cold hockey puck for you, Kiddo. Signed -- Irate Ranger Fan

Dear Irate: Thanks for expressing your point of view. But please don't send me to any prize fights. That is the ultimate in legalized mayhem and manslaughter.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers's booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

LIGHT SUPPER
Fish Chowder
Salad Bowl — Bread Tray
Otameal Tube Cake

OATMEAL TUBE CAKE

1 cup boiling water
¾ cup quick oats
1-3rd cup butter or margarine
½ cup granulated sugar
½ cup firmly packed light or dark brown sugar
¾ teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
1¼ cups flour, stir to aerate before measuring
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1-3rd cup chopped pecans
1-3rd cup flaked coconut

Pour boiling water over oats; cover and let stand 20 minutes. Cream butter and sugars; beat in vanilla and eggs. Add oats mixture; mix well. Stir together flour, soda, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg; add to butter mixture, mixing well. Stir in pecans and coconut. Turn into a greased and floured 6-cup fluted tube pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven about 50 minutes. Cool 5 minutes; remove from pan; cool completely. Frost with confectioners' sugar glaze and sprinkle with extra pecans or coconut.

HEARTY DINNER
Barbecue Beef — Noodles
Green Beans — Salad
Bread Tray
Frosted Chocolate Cake

BARBECUE BEEF

A thrifty lean cut of beef goes a long way.

4-pound bottom round beef roast
1 tablespoon salad oil
1½ cups or a 14-ounce bottle catchup
¾ cup water
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
6 whole cloves
2 whole allspice
1 bay leaf
Chili powder to taste

Trim excess fat from beef. In a large heavy ovenproof saucepot or casserole heat oil; add beef and brown on all sides. Remove beef and pour off fat. Return beef to saucepot and add remaining ingredients. Cover tightly and bake in a 325-degree oven until tender — 2½ to 3 hours; to test doneness cut a small slice from beef because it will not respond to the usual fork test. Chill beef and sauce separately. Remove hardened fat from sauce; remove spices. Heat sauce, adding chili powder to taste; slice beef, or as much of it as will be needed, and heat in sauce. Leftover beef not added to the sauce makes delicious sandwiches.

The cost of fielding athletic teams on the college level has more than doubled over the last few years. Many conferences and universities have been forced to drastically reduce or even eliminate various sports on a competitive level because of financial pressure. Now, the need is to provide appreciably more support for womens intercollegiate athletics.

Travel expenses, uniforms, equipment, and scholarships account for most of these increases.

In order to combat the spiraling costs of intercollegiate athletics in the Ohio Valley Conference, the Conference appointed a Cost Study Committee to study alternatives which will enable member schools to maintain their present level of athletics an without encumbering greater expenses.

The Cost Study Committee will present the following recommendations at the annual Conference meeting on April 24 in Bowling Green.

1. There should be a reduction in grant-in-aid for male athletes, accordingly:

(a) football-from forty-five full grant-in-aid to forty grants-in aid, and maintain fifteen full equated grants-in-aid. Effective fall of 1976.

(b) basketball-from eighteen full grants-in-aid to sixteen grants-in-aid, of which four can be divided. Effective fall of 1976.

(c) baseball-from twelve grants-in-aid to ten. Effective fall of 1975.

(d) golf-from five grants -in-aid to four. Effectiv fall of 1975.

(e) tennis-from five grants-in-aid to four, with the provision for seven point tennis matches in championship play. Effective fall of 1975.

(f) track and cross contry- from fourteen grants-in-aid to twelve. Effective fall of 1975.

2. The spring conference track, tennis, and golf meets should be sheduled in April.

3. The fall conference baseball schedule should be eliminated.

4. Efforts should be made to develop common schedules for spring sports activities, thereby allowing for common transportation.

5. A limitation should be placed on the size of travel squads. The Committee tentatively suggests forty-five in football, twelve in basketball and twenty in baseball.

Members of the OVC Cost Study Committee are: President Arliss Roaden, Tennessee Tech; Don Combs, Easern; George Fisher, Austin Peay; Solon Gentry, East Tennessee; Dr. John Minton, Western; and Dr. Constantine Curris, Murray.

LET'S GO FISHING

By VIRGIL WARD

TOLEDO BEND RESERVOIR FOR GREAT FISHING

One of the top freshwater fishing areas in the country is Toledo Bend Reservoir, south of Shreveport on the Louisiana and Texas border. This great spot covers nearly 100,000 acres of timber land and the waters abound in bass and crappie.

Toledo Bend is good almost anytime of the year. The reservoir, by the way, has such a tremendous amount of cover that when it gets windy you can duck into the brush and continue fishing.

Virgil Ward

Another thing, if you really like the outdoors you'll love Toledo Bend. There's plenty of wild life and it's highly visible. In fact, it's almost routine to see a small bear swimming across the lake or sight a deer along the shore.

As for seasons, if you're fishing in early spring you'll find bass heading for the shallows to spawn. They're pretty mean this time of year—and, as far as I'm concerned, the most fun to catch.

You might start with Bass Buster Beetle Spins around the cedar trees in the lake. Or maybe try Bass Buster Scorpions; just drop them a little deeper than the Beetle spins.

If these don't work, a good standby is just the jig and eel. Use a Bass Buster fiber guard jig (the guard keeps weeds off the lure) and an Uncle Josh Black Widow eel. Cast this combination into the brushy places and, when the lure settles on the bottom, raise it about a foot.

The brush at Toledo Bend can be a real challenge when you start to haul in big bass and other species that lurk there. While you'll almost always get a strike, getting that fish in through the brush is something else again.

If the brush is just too much for you, try the "sunken islands"—large dirt areas that rise out of the water. These are natural feeding areas for bass, particularly in early spring. The water near the "islands" is about 10 to 15 feet deep. Cast out to the "island" and then work the lure slowly into deeper water. You should get good strikes.

Around the tree tops you might try plastic worms. They work well. Use them, if you like, on an ultralight rig with a four-pound test line and 3/8-ounce Bass Buster jig. When a bass hits chances are it'll head for the tree tops. If it does, relax the pressure on your line and the fish will come floating out of the brush pile.

If you're fishing 20 to 25 feet down, a light line is particularly good because it sinks faster than a heavier line and gets the bait down quicker.

If you're game for tough but exciting fishing, try the brushy parts of Toledo Bend. But, then almost anywhere at Toledo Bend is great fishing.

Dear Virgil,

Some of my spinning lures have bucktail or feather skirts that have become matted and bedraggled. Is there any way I can perk them up, as the rest of the lure is okay?

Robert Gregory
Dearborn, Mich.

Dear Robert,

Yes, borrow an old trick that fly fishermen have used regularly to revitalize trout and bass flies. Using a pair of needle-nose pliers or some similar aid, hold the skirt of the lure over the steaming spout of a kettle of hot water. The steam will unmatt the hair or feathers and restore their natural appearance.

Phils snap Cards win streak

PHILADELPHIA AP--What a difference a year makes.

Last August baby-faced Tom Underwood made his first appearance on the mound for the Phillies and was lucky to emerge with his sanity.

"I gave up six runs and got only one out," he said Sunday with a giant smile after beating the St. Louis Cardinals with a 2-0 five-hitter to salvage the finale of the Phils' first three-game home series.

"This is the biggest thrill of my life," he said.

Was he a little nervous after he got to the stadium at 10:30 a.m.? "I started getting nervous at 10:33 ," he said. "After the seventh inning I just said to myself, have a good eighth and go from there. Tonight I won't sleep. I never do, win or lose."

It might have been tougher for some teammates to grab some winks, too, as the Phils' , who came north with vsions of a pennant, stumbled to a 1-3 start before the Sunday shutout pulled them to 2-3, two games behind the divison-leading Pittsburgh Pirates.

In addition to 13,539 paying fans and Underwood's 24 teammates, Cardinal catcher Ted Simmons was impressed with the 21-year-old Kokomo, Ind.,youngster's poise.

"I think the most important thing for him was that he didn't panic," Simmons said. "Often as a game like this progresses, a kid tends to get excited and get away from his game pattern."

He threw just 105 pitches, and seemed to be getting stronger. Lou Brock, plunked on the right elbow by a two-strike pitch in the eighth inning, was the only Cardinal runner in the final three innings.

And the first pitch to the last seven batters was a strike.

He gave up four single and a double, walked two one of them intentionally and hit Brock, while striking out three.

Greg Luzinki's solo fourth inning homer was all the offense the Phils needed, but Dave Cash pounded an RIB single in the fifth to add an insurance run.

The Phils only managed five hits themselves, beating St. Louis starter Bob Forsch, who gave up just four hits in his seven innings.

St. Louis, now 4-2, is off until Wednesday when the Cardinals entertain the Mets in the first of a two-game set, then host a three-game weekend series with the Pirates.

SWIMMING

CINCINNATI--The University of Southern California, led by sophomore John Naber, wrapped up its fourth straight National Amateur Athletic Union indoor men's swimming championship, outscoring runner-up UCLA 321-198.

Spirits lead playoffs, 3-1

ST. LOUIS, AP--"I can't believe it," the New York Nets' dejected Coach Keven Loughery exclaimed. "They got about every rebound they wanted.

"The last quarter was something," Loughery added incredulously. "After we got up by three points, I don't think we got another rebound."

That Loughery was in mild schock was excusable in light of his Nets' plight in the American Basketball Association's playoffs.

The Nets, who were prohibitive favorites to flatten the Spirits of St. Louis in their best-of-seven series, are instead behind 3-1 following a 100-89 loss Sunday night.

Loughery, with the two teams to meet again Tuesday night in New York, was hard-pressed to express optimism.

"The difference in the whole game was the boards," he reiterated sadly. "We did what we wanted to defensively. We just didn't get the rebounds."

A leaping Larry Kenon of the Nets speared 16 rebounds to go with his 12 points but had little under-the-basket support in the defeat, which was New York's third in a row.

Billy Paultz added 13 to the losers' retrieved shot toal, but he and Kenon were no match for St. Louis' Marvin Barnes and Maurice Lucas, who stormed the boards for a total of 38.

"It's jut like the coach said."the 6-foot-10 Paultz reflected in sober reference to St. Louis' 63-44 overall superiority in picking off missed shots.

"We couldn't box them off the boards," Paultz said, shaking his head. "Whenever they wanted a rebound they just got it."

In a show of power and surprising finesse, rookies Barnes and Lucas not only dominated the backboards but combines for 43 points, including 23 by Barnes, who also grabbed 20 rebounds.

St. Louis, after trailing by 83-80 with 7:04 remaining, caught the Nets for good at 87-87 and afterward outscored them 13-2 to pull away handily.

"We did what we wanted to do in alost every phase of the game," Loughery again lamented, "but you can't allow those guys to get second and third shots."

Balanced St. Louis scoring also included Freddie Lewis' 19 points and Mike Barr's 14, while the New York attack dropped off sharply behind Julius Erving's 35 to reserve John Williamson's 16.

Paultz added only eight points on 4-for-16 shooting, and starting guard Bill Melchionni's 14 weren't enough to take up the offensive slack.

"Our offense wasn't going that good tonight," said Lewis, the Spirits' floor leader. "But when your offense isn't going, that's when the defense had to.

"They're a pressure team," Lewis said of the defending ABA champion Nets, hwever.

"They've been down before and come back,. We're still going to have to play some good ball to beat them."

Phils snap Cards win streak

PHILADELPHIA AP--What a difference a year makes.

Last August baby-faced Tom Underwood made his first appearance on the mound for the Phillies and was lucky to emerge with his sanity.

"I gave up six runs and got only one out," he said Sunday with a giant smile after beating the St. Louis Cardinals with a 2-0 five-hitter to salvage the finale of the Phils' first three-game home series.

"This is the biggest thrill of my life," he said.

Was he a little nervous after he got to the stadium at 10:30 a.m.? "I started getting nervous at 10:33 ," he said. "After the seventh inning I just said to myself, have a good eighth and go from there. Tonight I won't sleep. I never do, win or lose."

It might have been tougher for some teammates to grab some winks, too, as the Phils' , who came north with vsions of a pennant, stumbled to a 1-3 start before the Sunday shutout pulled them to 2-3, two games behind the divison-leading Pittsburgh Pirates.

In addition to 13,539 paying fans and Underwood's 24 teammates, Cardinal catcher Ted Simmons was impressed with the 21-year-old Kokomo, Ind.,youngster's poise.

"I think the most important thing for him was that he didn't panic," Simmons said. "Often as a game like this progresses, a kid tends to get excited and get away from his game pattern."

He threw just 105 pitches, and seemed to be getting stronger. Lou Brock, plunked on the right elbow by a two-strike pitch in the eighth inning, was the only Cardinal runner in the final three innings.

And the first pitch to the last seven batters was a strike.

He gave up four single and a double, walked two one of them intentionally and hit Brock, while striking out three.

Greg Luzinki's solo fourth inning homer was all the offense the Phils needed, but Dave Cash pounded an RIB single in the fifth to add an insurance run.

The Phils only managed five hits themselves, beating St. Louis starter Bob Forsch, who gave up just four hits in his seven innings.

St. Louis, now 4-2, is off until Wednesday when the Cardinals entertain the Mets in the first of a two-game set, then host a three-game weekend series with the Pirates.

SWIMMING

CINCINNATI--The University of Southern California, led by sophomore John Naber, wrapped up its fourth straight National Amateur Athletic Union indoor men's swimming championship, outscoring runner-up UCLA 321-198.

Spirits lead playoffs, 3-1

ST. LOUIS, AP--"I can't believe it," the New York Nets' dejected Coach Keven Loughery exclaimed. "They got about every rebound they wanted.

"The last quarter was something," Loughery added incredulously. "After we got up by three points, I don't think we got another rebound."

That Loughery was in mild schock was excusable in light of his Nets' plight in the American Basketball Association's playoffs.

The Nets, who were prohibitive favorites to flatten the Spirits of St. Louis in their best-of-seven series, are instead behind 3-1 following a 100-89 loss Sunday night.

Loughery, with the two teams to meet again Tuesday night in New York, was hard-pressed to express optimism.

"The difference in the whole game was the boards," he reiterated sadly. "We did what we wanted to defensively. We just didn't get the rebounds."

A leaping Larry Kenon of the Nets speared 16 rebounds to go with his 12 points but had little under-the-basket support in the defeat, which was New York's third in a row.

Billy Paultz added 13 to the losers' retrieved shot toal, but he and Kenon were no match for St. Louis' Marvin Barnes and Maurice Lucas, who stormed the boards for a total of 38.

"It's jut like the coach said."the 6-foot-10 Paultz reflected in sober reference to St. Louis' 63-44 overall superiority in picking off missed shots.

"We couldn't box them off the boards," Paultz said, shaking his head. "Whenever they wanted a rebound they just got it."

In a show of power and surprising finesse, rookies Barnes and Lucas not only dominated the backboards but combines for 43 points, including 23 by Barnes, who also grabbed 20 rebounds.

St. Louis, after trailing by 83-80 with 7:04 remaining, caught the Nets for good at 87-87 and afterward outscored them 13-2 to pull away handily.

"We did what we wanted to do in alost every phase of the game," Loughery again lamented, "but you can't allow those guys to get second and third shots."

Balanced St. Louis scoring also included Freddie Lewis' 19 points and Mike Barr's 14, while the New York attack dropped off sharply behind Julius Erving's 35 to reserve John Williamson's 16.

Paultz added only eight points on 4-for-16 shooting, and starting guard Bill Melchionni's 14 weren't enough to take up the offensive slack.

"Our offense wasn't going that good tonight," said Lewis, the Spirits' floor leader. "But when your offense isn't going, that's when the defense had to.

"They're a pressure team," Lewis said of the defending ABA champion Nets, hwever.

"They've been down before and come back. We're still going to have to play some good ball to beat them."

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday April 14, the 104th day of 1975. There are 261 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1865, President Abraham Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth at Ford's Theater in Washington. Lincoln died the next morning.

On this date —

In 1775, Philadelphia Quakers under Benjamin Franklin organized the first society for the abolition of slavery.

In 1890, delegates to the Washington conference of American states created what was to become the Pan American Union.

In 1912, the ocean liner, "Titanic," struck an iceberg in the North Atlantic shortly before midnight. The ship sank two and one-half hours later, with the loss of more than 1,500 lives.

In 1931, King Alfonso of Spain went into exile, and the Spanish Republic was proclaimed.

In 1945, in the Pacific war, U.S. B-29 bombers pounded Tokyo and the Japanese imperial palace.

Ten years ago: British Prime Minister Harold Wilson began a visit to the United States. The emphasis in talks with President Lyndon Johnson was on Britain's economic problems.

Five years ago: The Apollo 13 spacecraft headed back to earth after a moon mission that had been aborted because of mechanical problems.

One year ago: The first U.S. communications satellite, Westar 1, was launched.

Today's birthdays: Actress Julie Christie is 34. Actor Rod Steiger is 50.

Thought for today: no matter how much cats fight, there always seems to be plenty of kittens — Abraham Lincoln.

Portageville youth receives Army ROTC scholarship

PORTAGEVILLE--Joe Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Butler, has been selected to receive an Army Reserve Officers Training Corps four-year scholarship for the 1975-76 school year. The scholarship will pay for all fees, tuition, books, laboratory expenses and any other educational costs at any school of Butler's choice in the United States that offers an Army ROTC program.

In addition to the financial aids, he will receive a stipend of $100 per month for up to 10 months of each school year to cover the cost of room and board. Other benefits will be travel pay, free flying lessons and a sumer training camp between his junior and senior years with officer privileges.

Butler has elected to attend University of Missouri-Rolla where he will study computer science and electrical engineering. Upon graduation, he will enter the Army as a second lieutenant.

Approximately one of every 10 applicants is awarded this particular scholarship. The Army receives a minimum of 10,000 applications a year from across the nation. Butler's list of qualifications was impressive enough to place him in the privileged few.

In his senior class at Portageville School, Butler ranks No. 2 with a grade-point average of 10.591 on a possible 11-point scale. He has served as vice president of the student council and the PHS male candidate for the Memphis Press Scimitar's Tenn-ager of the Week Contest.

He was also elected a state senator in Boys State and was chosen to Who's Who Among American High School Students, and is a member of Future Teachers of America Chapter and the Varsity Club.

He plays guitar in the school's stage band, has been a football letterman for four years, attended student council

State economy top priority

(The following article on the Department of Community Affairs, Regulation and Licensing (CARL) is the first of a two-part series written by Alfred C. Sikes, Director of the Department of CARL)

BY ALFRED C. SIKES

JEFFERSON CITY, MO.--The development of Missouri's economy is Governor Christopher S. Bond's first priority. This is one of the many responsibilities of the Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation and Licensing (CARL), which brings together more than 30 previously and independent agencies as a result of state reorganization.

Organizationally, the department is divided into three broad categories: community and economic development, regulation of business and financial institutions, and registration of professional person. Common to all these activities is the protection and promotion of consumer interests.

The goal of state reorganization to establsish clear-cut accountability and to bring better management practices to state government is a principal objective in CARL. The department has utilized the management-by-objectives (MBO) approach to define the administrative and program objectives of each unit and to set timetables for completion. MBO helps assure that the resources of state government are effectively used to achieve clearly defined results.

Promoting economic growth in the state is a responsibility of the Division fof Community and Economic Development. Governor Bond has stated: "My administration will give highest priority to the taskof stimulation balanced economic growth throughout Missouri so that adequate job opportunities may be provided for all citizens. We will intensify our efforts to help Missouri communities develop the public facilities and services they must have in order to make themselves attractive places for job-creating investments by business and industry."

With those objectives in mind, the division is stepping up activities in several areas. An in-state marketing program is under way to encourage Missouri manufacturers to expand in Missouri rather than elsewhere. An out-of-state marketing program has also been designed to encourage industry to locate here. This "take the product to the buyer" philosophy was estabilished in an effort to generate more jobs for Missourians through expansion of the state's industrial base. Such expansion also serves to supply outside money to the Missouri economy. Five major industries have created more than 1,650 jobs in the state within the last year.

The division is also planning an international business development program to expand overseas markets for Missouri products and encourage foreign investment in the state.

To promote the development of Missouri communities, the division recently announced its plans for the All Missouri Certified Cities Program. The division will work with the University of Missouri Extension Division and Missouri Municipal League to assist cities in meeting certain criteria related to public services and facilities to qualify as an All Missouri Certified City. The primary upurpose of the progra m is to create new and better job opportunities for Missourians by stimulation investment leading to economic growth.

Towns enrolled in the Missouri Community Betterment Program last year gained 87 percent of all jobs created by new industries. With fewer than 23 percent of all communities in the state enrolled in the program, the statistics verify that industry seeks those communities actively involved in self-improvement.

In other measures to foster economic growth, as well as recreational activities, efforts have been made to step up travel in the state. The Division of Tourism took a new approach last year in the midst of an energy crisis that threatened to stifle travel. A regional effort was made, attracting close-to-home vacationers from within Missouri and in surrounding states. The result was a surprisingly good year for tourisem, which remained a billion-dollar-plus industry. Once again, tourist spending generated well over $100 million in state and local tax revenues. A year-end survey by the division drew optimistic responses from tourist attractions around the state.

Spring driving hazards noted

JEFFERSON CITY — Drivers urged by Col. Sam S. Smith, superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol,, not to allow false security to overtake them during the pleasant weather of spring.

"Last year our spring traffic deaths soared from 67 in March to 87 in April and 107 in May," Smith noted. "Such a prospect, if repeated, is enough to take the joy out of driving in the warm months ahead. I urge drivers to be extra alert and to show courtesy as they travel during the spring season of the year."

The patrol superintendent pointed out some of the driving hazards associated with this time of the year and showed how motorists can safely meet them: Respect and expect sudden spring rain showers. Reduce your speed and increase your following distance when it rains; concentrate on your driving. Don't let the beautiful scenery distract you from your main job of driving.

Children are out in great numbers, so watch for them as you drive through residential areas and near playgrounds. Drivers are also out in great numbers this time of the year. Even secondary roads, at times, may be crowded. Keep alert to the road situation ahead of you and be prepared for anything; and, winter driving is often hard on a vehicle's vital safety parts. Have your vehicle checked before you take that

"This spring we will again face the same seasona hazards of increased traffic, sudden rain showers, children in or near traffic and the other dangers connected with this time of the year," the colonel continued.

Legs represent Jaycees

The Sikeston Jaycees will be represented in the Mr. Follies Contest by the legs of this secret contestant. The contest will be held in conjunction with the Junior Woman's Club's Red Stocking Follies to be presented April 18 and 19 at 7:30 p.m. in the middle school auditorium. Posters bearing pictures of the contestants' legs are on display at various places in around town to see which pair is the most popular. Voters may cast as many one-cent ballots as they wish for their favorite legs.

SS checks to be mailed soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government announced Friday it will begin mailing out $50 checks early next month to Social Security recipients under the tax cut law signed by President Ford last month.

The Treasury Department said the one-time payments are expected to be distributed by about June 20.

Treasury cautioned that the checks will be going out at about the same time tax rebate checks will be mailed, so Social Security "recipients should not be concerned, therefore, if their checks do not arrive during the latter part of May or early June."

Treasury did advise recipients, however, to contact officials if they don't receive a check by June 30.

Highlights and Sidelights

Criminal code discussed

JEFFERSON —CITY — The likelihood that Missouri's criminal code will be revised during the current legislative session was increased last week when House leaders, under pressure from the Senate, agreed to retain sentencing authority in the hands of a jury.

As introduced, the proposed criminal code revision would have taken that power away from the jury and left all sentencing up to the judge.

The question of judicial sentencing had proved a major stumbling block to passage of the proposed revision. Its proponents had argued that a judge would be better able to fit the punishment to the crime because he would be able to study the case and the individual's background before sentencing. But legislators favoring the retention of the current system of jury sentencing won out.

The proposed revision as prepared by the Committee to Draft a Modern Criminal Code, a group established in 1969 under the direction of Attorney General Joh C. Danforth. It was first intruduced into the General Assembly last year, but little progress was made.

Legislative leaders say the revision is long overdue. The last revision as completed in 1835.

"We're trying to mete out the same punishment for the same offense," Rep. Harold Holliday, D-Kansas City, says. "We want to minimize the punishment of persons for who they are rather than for what they do."

Holliday, sponsor of the House version, uses rape as an example of the inequitries which exist under the present criminal code.

"Under present law, rape is a graded offense. A person can be put in jail for a day or life. There are no guidelines for a jury to follow when deciding or the sentence. Frequently they decided on the basis of who was raped by whom," Holliday said.

According to the lawmaker, a black man who rapes a white woman often receives a stiffer sentence than a white man convicted on the same offense.

Sen. Ike Skelton, D-Lexington, sponsor of the Senate version, says that "the guts of the revised code make punishmentequal to the seriousness of the crime committed. It has stiffer penalties for crimes against persons, as opposed to crimes against property."

"For instance," Skelton said, "a felonious assault without malice carries a five-year maximum while stealing a dog has a 10-year maximum (under the present code)."

To equalize the assessment of punishment, four classes of felonies and three classes of misdemeanors would be established. Within each class is a defined range of penalties. Crimes are ranked according to their gravity and put into one of the classes.

"Before, this was done in piecemeal fashion," Skelton said. "Something would happen and the legislature would pass another law without regard to the criminal statutes already on the books."

Antiquated crimes, such as driving a stagecoach while drink or injuring homing pigeons, would be eliminated under the new criminal code. It also is written in modern, easier-to-understand language.

The House version is more liberal in its details than the Senate version. It eases laws governing deviant sexual behavior and allows gambling in one's home as long as no one profits.

"Those are victimless crimes," Hollday says. "They're impossible to enforce so people use them to harrass other people and hold them in line.'

The more conservative Senate version, however, is closer to floor approval and will be sent to the House before the House completes debate on its bill.

SS checks to be mailed soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government announced Friday it will begin mailing out $50 checks early next month to Social Security recipients under the tax cut law signed by President Ford last month.

The Treasury Department said the one-time payments are expected to be distributed by about June 20.

Treasury cautioned that the checks will be going out at about the same time tax rebate checks will be mailed, so Social Security "recipients should not be concerned, therefore, if their checks do not arrive during the latter part of May or early June."

Treasury did advise recipients, however, to contact officials if they don't receive a check by June 30.

Highlights and Sidelights

Criminal code discussed

JEFFERSON —CITY — The likelihood that Missouri's criminal code will be revised during the current legislative session was increased last week when House leaders, under pressure from the Senate, agreed to retain sentencing authority in the hands of a jury.

As introduced, the proposed criminal code revision would have taken that power away from the jury and left all sentencing up to the judge.

The question of judicial sentencing had proved a major stumbling block to passage of the proposed revision. Its proponents had argued that a judge would be better able to fit the punishment to the crime because he would be able to study the case and the individual's background before sentencing. But legislators favoring the retention of the current system of jury sentencing won out.

The proposed revision as prepared by the Committee to Draft a Modern Criminal Code, a group established in 1969 under the direction of Attorney General Joh C. Danforth. It was first intruduced into the General Assembly last year, but little progress was made.

Legislative leaders say the revision is long overdue. The last revision as completed in 1835.

"We're trying to mete out the same punishment for the same offense," Rep. Harold Holliday, D-Kansas City, says. "We want to minimize the punishment of persons for who they are rather than for what they do."

Holliday, sponsor of the House version, uses rape as an example of the inequitries which exist under the present criminal code.

"Under present law, rape is a graded offense. A person can be put in jail for a day or life. There are no guidelines for a jury to follow when deciding or the sentence. Frequently they decided on the basis of who was raped by whom," Holliday said.

According to the lawmaker, a black man who rapes a white woman often receives a stiffer sentence than a white man convicted on the same offense.

Sen. Ike Skelton, D-Lexington, sponsor of the Senate version, says that "the guts of the revised code make punishmentequal to the seriousness of the crime committed. It has stiffer penalties for crimes against persons, as opposed to crimes against property."

"For instance," Skelton said, "a felonious assault without malice carries a five-year maximum while stealing a dog has a 10-year maximum (under the present code)."

To equalize the assessment of punishment, four classes of felonies and three classes of misdemeanors would be established. Within each class is a defined range of penalties. Crimes are ranked according to their gravity and put into one of the classes.

"Before, this was done in piecemeal fashion," Skelton said. "Something would happen and the legislature would pass another law without regard to the criminal statutes already on the books."

Antiquated crimes, such as driving a stagecoach while drink or injuring homing pigeons, would be eliminated under the new criminal code. It also is written in modern, easier-to-understand language.

The House version is more liberal in its details than the Senate version. It eases laws governing deviant sexual behavior and allows gambling in one's home as long as no one profits.

"Those are victimless crimes," Hollday says. "They're impossible to enforce so people use them to harrass other people and hold them in line.'

The more conservative Senate version, however, is closer to floor approval and will be sent to the House before the House completes debate on its bill.

Matthews student named All-American Senior

MATTHEWS--Dennis W. Burns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Burns, of P. O. Box 54, a senior at Matthews High School, has been awarded the distinction of All-American Senior by The National Panorama of American Youth.

The All-American Senior award is given in recognition of the recipient's excellent achievements and efforts during his or her high school career.

Burns is one of only 3,600 outstanding seniors nationwide who will appear in The National Panorama this year, and these same seniors have also qualified for this distinctive award.

Dennis W. Burns

The seniors will have their biographies published in the forthcoming yearbook edition of The National Panorama which will be released in May. Many will also have their photos published.

In addition, these seniors (from all 50 states) were given the opportunity to present their opinion and attitudes about America. Surprisingly, the majority of seniors polled for this publicatin were extremely optimistic concerning America's future and the roles they will play in America's future.

Doctors protest insurance

Operations postponed

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Operations requiring anesthesia were postponed in this city's two hospitals for the third consecutive day today after seven physicians stopped work until they get what they consider adequate malpractice insurance.

The seven anesthesiologists have refused to participate in all but emergency operations since an insurance policy expired earlier this week. The insurer declined to renew the policy at its current rate.

The two hospitals, Mansfield General and People's, continued normal health care except for surgery. Fifty-five operations were canceled in the first two days of the protest.

A patient suffering appendicitis was transferred to another hospital for an operation.

"If this continues we are in deep trouble," said Phillip Wisdom, administrator at General Hospital, a 450-bed facility.

Doctors in Mansfield, about 65 miles southwest of Cleveland, met Thursday with hospital administrators to look for solutions to the crisis. Officials from the state Department of Insurance also looked for sources of increased coverage for the physicians.

At the hospitals, admissions, normally 60 a day, dropped 50 per cent, the hospital said.

The seven anesthesiologists, who are the physicians who keep patients unconscious during an operation, are members of Anesthesia Associates of Mansfield, a city of 55,000.

The group's malpractice insurance policy expired at midnight Tuesday.

Since then, the group has managed to get $300,000 worth of insurance for $50,000 a year. Under its old policy, the group paid $35,000 a year for $2 million coverage. Dr. Donald Mills, one of the anesthesiologists, said the doctors do not consider the $300,000 adequate coverage.

Michigan State football halfbacks Claude Geiger of Charleston, W. Va., and Leon Williams of Norfolk, Va., are sprinters on the Spartan track team.

Cape woman dies in crash of plane carrying orphans

CAPE GIRARDEAU — After days of waiting for government officials to determine if a Cape Girardeau woman civil service worker in Saigon was aboard the plane airlifting Vietnamese orphans which crashed in flames April 4. or if she was in Europe on leave, Mrs. Lois Middlebrook was notified late Thursday that her daughter's body had been found in the wreckage.

Mrs. Middlebrook, a widow, said the body of her daughter, Miss Martha Middlebrook, 31, would be returned here, but no further details were learned. Martha was the only child of Mrs. Middlebrook and her late husband, Dolphus Middlebrook.

Other survivors are the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Fred Nance of Jackson; an uncle, Consie Redd of Charleston; an aunt, Mrs. Prentise Bard of Greenville, Ky.; and several cousins.

Mrs. Middlebrook, who is employed at Libson Shops, Inc., here, said her daughter wrote home often. "Martha had written me that she would have a leave the first part of April and she said she was going to Europe, mainly to Germany Mrs. Middlebrook said.

A few weeks ago, she said, a young woman who also worked with her daughter in Saigon was in the United States on leave.

"Her friend called me from Los Angeles, Calif., just before she was to catch her plane back to Saigon to tell me Martha was fine and was working on her leave to go to Europe. Martha's friend said that they were not in any danger since they were about 450 miles from where the actual war was going on," Mrs. Middlebrook said.

Miss Middlebrook was a secretary assigned to the Navy in Saigon.

Tuesday, Mrs. Middlebrook said, Lt. John D. May, commanding the Cape Girardeau Naval Reserve Center, came to see her. She said Lt. May stated that her daughter's name was on the list of those supposed to be aboard the plane that crashed in Saigon.

However, no other evidence that Miss Middlebrook was aboard had been found at that time, her mother said. "Lt. May said the wreckage of the plane had been checked thoroughly and that they could find no other evidence that she might have been aboard," Mrs. Middlebrook said. No luggage, purse or other evidence established as that of Miss Middlebrook had been found, her mother said.

Mrs. Middlebrook said that she could give no explanation for her daughter being aboard the plane, but thought that probably because of the seriousness of the war at that time, the government was evacuating civilian personnel such as her daughter. Her daughter apparently was on her way back to the United States, Mrs. Middlebrook said.

Miss Middlebrook was born Sept. 2, 1943 in Cape Girardeau, graduated from Central High School and attended Southeast Missouri State University a year, majoring in physical education.

After passing a civil service examination, she first worked two years as a civilian secretary with the Army at Ft. Leonard Wood, then three years at Ft. Benjamin Harrison in Indianapolis, Ind. She then volunteered for duty in South Vietnam with the Army and was later transferred to the Navy.

She was last home on leave from Saigon at Christmas 1973.

3 arrested for Bootheel assault

CARROLTON, Ala. — Extradition proceedings are under way for three Campbell, Mo., youths charged with the assault and attempted robbery Tuesday of a 73-year-old rural Campbell man.

The three, Mark L. McCollum, 17, Eddie Dean Collins, 19, and a 15-year-old juvenile, were arrested Thursday in Carrolton on warrants issued by authorities in Dunklin County, Mo. where the incident allegedly occurred.

Deputy Bob McDonald of the Dunklin County Sheriff's Department said the arrests were the result of an alert put out on the three saying they were believed enroute to Florida.

McDonald said the three also face misdemeanor charges in Alabama in connection with the reported theft of merchandise and money under the amount of $50.

Reports from the sheriff's office indicate the three left Campbell Tuesday after the alleged assault took place.

Earlier reports stated te the three had assaulted Dewey Ayers after he had hired them to drive him from Campbell to his Route Two home. One of the youths, reports said, hit Ayers on the head with a tire iron.

Warrants against the elder two charge them with assault with attempt to rob. The juvenile's case will be handled by juvenile authorities unless he is certified for trial as an adult.

Filing deadline Tuesday

Income taxpaying citizens who haven't yet filed their 1974 returns had better get with it or that cash refund promised by the federal government could go for penalties and interest. Deadline for filing both federal and Missouri 1974 income tax returns is only one day away — at midnight Tuesday, to be exact.

Missouri senior citizens filing income tax credit or refund forms under the circuit breaker act, however, have been granted an extension in the deadline to June 15. This is only for the circuit breaker forms and does not relieve citizens from filing regular Missouri income tax forms by Tuesday midnight, said Jacob H. Wolf of Jefferson City, an assistant to the Senior Citizens Credit Group director.

Special assistance is offered by the government to taxpayers who have waited until the last minute to prepare their federal and state income tax returns.

Carl E. Clark, manager at the Internal Revenue Service office in the Federal Building, 339 Broadway, Cape Girardeau, said the office will be open for taxpayers' assistance on Monday and Tuesday. Hours Monday will be from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. On Tuesday, the closing hour will be extended to 6 p.m.

David D. Pierce, senior auditor at the Missouri Department of Revenue office located in the same quarters at the Federal Building, said the state representatives would observe the identical hours Monday and Tuesday for the benefit of taxpayers needing assistance.

Both Clark and Pierce said larger numbers of citizens came to the offices for help in January and February, with the work load dropping off toward the end of March and early April. Those who have waited until the last minute to file are asked to visit the offices Tuesday morning, if possible, to avoid the after-work-hour rush expected.

Taxpayers mailing their returns should check withthe post office to determine when they must be in the mailboxes in order to be postmarked by Tuesday midnight, they said.

There is still a great amount of interest in the circuit breaker tax this year, but not as many persons needed assistance since they obtained this last year and were, therefore, more familiar with the forms, Pierce said.

Clark said area taxpayers may obtain federal tax information by telephone by calling the IRS office in St. Louis. The toll-free number, (800) 392-4200, may be called between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

SMSU treasurer to be honored at retirement dinner

CAPE GIRARDEAU — About 300 colleagues and friends of Jack Wimp will gather at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Memorial Hall ballroom at Southesast Missouri State University for a recognition dinner in honor of the university's treasurer who is retiring on June 30 after 31 years on the campus.

The program will feature a tribute from Dr. Mark F. Scully, president of Southeast Missouri State who has worked with the university's top business officer on a daily basis for the past 19 years.

Master of ceremonies will be M. G. Lorberg, head of the speech department. Others onthe program will include Dr. H. O. Grauel, professor emeritus of English, and Alton Bray, registrar.

Wimp came to Southeast Missouri State in 1944 as a temporary teacher in the Navy's B-12 program on the campus. His first "official" position with the university was that of purchasing agent. In addition, for several years after World War II, he served as a veterans counselor.

In 1951, he was designated treasurer of what was then Southeast Missouri State College. At that time, the staff of the business office consisted only of Wimp and a part-time student helper. Today the business office employs 15 full-time persons and handles many times the amount of money it did in 1951.

Originally from Randolph County, Ark., Wimp received his bachelor's degree at Southwestern Oklahoma State Teachers College in Weatherford, Okla., and earned his master's degree at George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn.

The program will feature a tribute from Dr. Mark F. Scully, president of Southeast Missouri State who has worked with the university's top business officer on a daily basis for the past 19 years.

Master of ceremonies will be M. G. Lorberg, head of the speech department. Others onthe program will include Dr. H. O. Grauel, professor emeritus of English, and Alton Bray, registrar.

Wimp came to Southeast Missouri State in 1944 as a temporary teacher in the Navy's B-12 program on the campus. His first "official" position with the university was that of purchasing agent. In addition, for several years after World War II, he served as a veterans counselor.

In 1951, he was designated treasurer of what was then Southeast Missouri State College. At that time, the staff of the business office consisted only of Wimp and a part-time student helper. Today the business office employs 15 full-time persons and handles many times the amount of money it did in 1951.

Originally from Randolph County, Ark., Wimp received his bachelor's degree at Southwestern Oklahoma State Teachers College in Weatherford, Okla., and earned his master's degree at George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn.
